ACAD WSO Literature Committee

Literature written by Adult Children, for Adult Children, powered by Adult Child Volunteers.

Calling Fellow Travelers who love ACAD Literature

Help carry the ACAD message through your gift of service.

Are you a Fellow Traveler with planning, project management, writing, editing experience, or a desire to become a reader to evaluate new and current literature? We invite you to volunteer. Your skills can help the next adult child encounter a clear, compassionate message of recovery.

The ACAD WSO Literature Committee serves the Fellowship and reports to the ACAD WSO Board. We partner with authors, editors, evaluators, publishers, and translators to develop, refine, and steward literature through collaborative writing and editing, using consistent standards, transparent processes, and continuous improvement. Our purpose and vision are to keep the ACAD message clear, accurate, accessible, inclusive, and faithful to ACAD principles for generations to come.

Your Time Can Make a Difference

Today, developing and publishing new ACAD Literature can take over 4-5 years. With more volunteers helping with editing, writing, coordination, and supporting our authors, we believe we can significantly shorten this time, potentially to two years or less.

Every volunteer brings us closer to sharing new recovery literature with adult children around the world. We often hope someone else will step forward. Perhaps this is your opportunity to make a difference. Whatever time and skills you can offer, your service can help carry the ACAD message to those still seeking recovery.
